

ASTERIOS DELIGIANNIS CV

Asterios Deligiannis is a Cardiologist (1982), Professor of Sports Medicine and Director of Sports Medicine Laboratory in Aristotle University of Thessaloniki (1992-2018). Emeritus Professor of University (2018-today). He has established in Greece exercise rehabilitation programs for renal patients during their hemodialysis sessions, cardiac patients and patients with chronic diseases and neurological disorders. He has exceptional research experience on the effects of exercise training on cardiac morphology and function. He has more than 250 publications in scientific journals. He has presented more than 300 lectures in International Congresses, and he was chairman (or co-chairman) in more than 60 scientific round tables. The European Renal Association has awarded him seven times for his research, and three times by FIMS and other medical Associations. Citations (in Scopus) : 3226 (h-index 21).